Continuation of 11. does NOT place the application in condition for allowance because: Applicant states the applied prior art of Lane does not discloses dynamically determined extent of frame data. In response, the Examiner respectfully disagrees. An I-frame is used to generate at least one of the frames in the video stream. In other words, the I-frame is reduced dynamically becareate P and B frames. The compression of P-frames relies on temporal prediction from previous I or P frames and the B-frame is generated from adjacent I or P frames. The reduction of the I-frame is not stative and when the I-frame is reduced, it will become less than the entirety of the first frame. Therfore the Cited reference infract teaches fetching a dynamically extent of the frame data.
